

Staff Profile: Chris Molloy

Chris is our Chief Investment Officer for Morrrows Private Wealth. Here he reflects on his experiences with Morrrows and other interests:

What brought you to Morrrows, and what were your first impressions?

I always had an interest in investments and financial markets and believed financial planning was a natural fit. I began applying for positions as a paraplanner where I had a few interviews with the big banks and realised that this was not for me. I was uncomfortable being tied to institutions which had an expectation to sell their own products, so I sought firms that were more flexible with a focus on providing advice rather than selling products, and fortunately I ended up at Morrrows.

What do you enjoy about your work?

Each day is different, with the markets changing all the time and each client being unique, it keeps you on your toes and thinking, which I enjoy. Ultimately, helping clients achieve their goals is very satisfying, although challenging in terms of dealing with different emotions and personalities.

If you weren't a Chief Investment officer, what would you be?

If I didn't have to work, I would be a stay at home dad, but in the real world I don't think I could leave the financial markets, so it would have to be something which involved investments.

What is your greatest strength?

I don't require a lot of sleep which gives me more time to fit more into the day.

What do you enjoying doing in your spare time?

I enjoy catching up with friends, watching Geelong play football, and spending time with my kids. I would also like to do a lot more travel.

Favourite book, movie or play?

Some of my favourite movies include Roadhouse, Old School, Superbad, and Bad Santa (shows the sense of humour I have!)

Favourite travel destinations?

The US and Mexico but would really like to see Europe.
